COUNTIES PROTEST HIGHWAY PATCHING

Cook Joins Lowndes in Denouncing Board for Route 41 Policy.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—After a delay of a week or more Cook county commissioners have adopted a resolution, jointly with Lowndes county, protesting against patch-work repairs on federal highway No. 41, north of Valdosta, in a portion of Lowndes and Cook counties.

In speaking of the situation today regarding the efforts of these two counties to get recognition from the state highway board, J. M. Ashley, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"The state board was asked to reconstruct No. 41 in the two counties and replied that money in hand could not be allotted for that purpose. We secured an opinion from United States Senator Walter F. George and Thomas Macdonald, chief of the federal road bureau in Washington, saying the emergency relief fund appropriated by the last congress could be used for such purposes.

"By the time we secured these high opinions the state board had started patch-work repairs, in our opinion making the highway worse than before. The state board has given no heed to our protests, in which Cook county has joined. We have secured the facts to make plain the fairness and justice of our request to the state board, we have public opinion behind us, as well as the law, but are being treated with apparent indifference by the entire state highway board. The whole situation serves to point out to the people of Georgia the high-handed methods of the state board and its disregard for just claims, facts, authorities, opinions and fairness.

BIBB BOARD VOTES

SLASH IN SALARIES

MACON, Ga., Sept. 11.—(P)—A flat 10 per cent reduction in the salaries of Bibb county officers and employees for 1933 was voted Saturday by the board of county commissioners, in special session.

At the same time, the board voted to levy 18 mills for 1933 taxes—the same levy as was levied last year.

The schedule must be approved by the November term grand jury before it becomes effective.

Home Planned Where Old Couples May Spend Life's Evening Together

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—Savannah has several homes for old people—men and women. But it does not have anywhere an aged couple may spend their final years together.

This deficiency is to be remedied if the Silver Cross Circle of the Kings Daughters carries out plans it has announced. This body of women proposes to secure a place in the country of 15 or 20 acres and place upon it small cottages where aged couples who are not able to care for themselves may be provided for. The circle has engaged the services of Levy & Clarke, architects, to work out the details of such a plan and it is now looking for a site.

There is a fund left through the will of the late Percival S. Cohen which may be used in getting such an enterprise started. It is hoped to supplement this by popular subscriptions.

LOCAL RACES CENTER INTEREST IN LOWNDES

VALDOSTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—Lowndes county voters—3,200 of them—will go to the polls Wednesday to select three county commissioners from a field of ten candidates; two legislative representatives out of a list of four, and one solicitor-general from two candidates.

The race has become a heated one, despite the fact that the interest of the voters is centered on many important state house officers and a member of the United States senate.

The candidates for county commissioner include Zeno H. Barfield, W. R. Conley, H. G. Moore, W. H. McKee, R. Parramore, L. W. Shaw, Jack Staten, Young Tillman, Ivey S. Wisenbaker and Will Wisenbaker. W. R. Conley, Ivey Wisenbaker and Jack Staten compose the present board and are offering for re-election; H. G. Moore is a former member of the board and W. H. McKee is former mayor of Valdosta; L. W. Shaw is a former member of city council, and the remaining candidates are without political records.

For representative the candidates are J. D. Ashley, Omer W. Franklin, W. L. Fender and J. B. Odum. Mr. Ashley is a present representative; Mr. Franklin is city attorney; Mr. Fender is a naval stores operator, and Mr. Odum an attorney.

G. C. Spurlin, of this city, present solicitor-general, is a candidate and selection and is opposed by Clifford E. Hay, of Thomasville, a former solicitor-general of the circuit.

CITY HEADS TO MEET IN SAVANNAH TODAY

Executives of Many Cities in Florida, Georgia, Carolina to Confer.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—Savannah is to entertain on Monday a number of mayors and other visitors from towns in Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas. They will be here as representatives of the North Carolina Municipal Association and the Coastal States Co-ordinated. The visitors will include George W. Coan Jr., mayor of Winston-Salem; E. M. Kox, city manager of High Point; E. B. Deany, mayor of Gastonia; George J. Leary, mayor of Raleigh; A. V. Edwards, mayor of Hendersonville, and J. E. L. Wade, commissioner of public works of Wilmington. Those will represent the North Carolina Municipal Association. Included among the representatives of cities in the Coastal States Co-ordinated will be Mayor Hudson of Jacksonville, the president, Thomas M. Hynes, of Savannah; W. D. Jennings, of Augusta; L. B. Owens, of Charleston, and others.

Upon their arrival on Monday morning the visitors will be met by a reception committee headed by H. Mercer Jordan, the city recorder. There is to be a short business session during the morning and at noon the delegation will be taken on a flight through the air so as to see Savannah from that angle. Later they are to board the private yacht of M. O. Dunlap, collector of the port, and carried to his island resort, Jack Row, near Dauterike. There will be some business session held there Monday afternoon and Monday night and the return to Savannah will be made Tuesday morning. It is hoped to have the North Carolina coast cities become members of the Coastal States Co-ordinated as a result of this conference in Savannah.

ONE DEAD, 9 INJURED IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 11.—Twelve people, nine white and three negroes, were involved in an auto head-on collision two miles north of here on the Buford highway Sunday morning at 1 o'clock. Buddie Rogers, Lawrenceville negro, who was riding the left seat of one of the cars, was instantly killed. He was crushed against the front of the other car.

George Hutchins, his wife, two children and a brother had gone for a ride when a car coming from the opposite direction at a rapid rate, said a witness, crashed into them. The car, which was driven by Bud Whitlock, accompanied by three other white men and three negroes, met the Hutchins' car on a curve at Allen's filling station.

George Hutchins had his right ankle crushed and was otherwise injured. He was rushed to Veterans' Hospital No. 48, Mrs. Hutchins had a finger broken and suffered cuts; one of the children, about 10 years of age, had a collar bone and right leg broken. The other child and Ernest Hutchins, a brother of George, were slightly injured. Mrs. Hutchins and the injured child were sent to Grady hospital, at Atlanta, this morning.

Shirley, 12, daughter of George and W. G. Arnold Jr., who were in the roadster with Bud Whitlock and the three negroes who were on the running board, was badly injured. Nash having teeth knocked out.

Whitlock, driver of the roadster, had his shoulder knocked out of place and was otherwise injured. He was placed in jail with two negroes, Otis Bell and Ozzie Cooper, who were on his car, to await a coroner's verdict. Sheriff C. F. Griswell and Deputy Henry Hutchins made the arrests.

MUCH PAVING PLANNED FOR HANCOCK COUNTY

SPARTA, Ga., Sept. 11.—State Highway Commissioner Jud P. Wilhoit, of Warrenton, was a visitor here Friday and gave out interesting information regarding the highway department's plans for road building in this county.

Commissioner Wilhoit told leading citizens that a contract would be let soon to extend the paving from the junction of the Sparta and Milledgeville road at Montpelier church, in Baldwin county, to Deveraux, in Hancock county, a distance of about 12 miles. He also said that the paving would be brought on to Sparta as soon as the new road now being graded from here to Deveraux is completed. It is hoped that this work can be done while the other highway is being paved.

As soon as this work has been done it is estimated that the unpaved gap between here and Warrenton will be paved, which will give an entirely paved road from Macon to Augusta by the shortest route.

CHATTOOGA COUNTY LOCAL RACES HEATED

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Sept. 10.—Next Wednesday's democratic primary will bring to a close some hotly contested races in Chattooga county, in addition to the races for statehouse officials.

There are eight candidates seeking the three places on the county board of roads and revenues. Two of the present members, P. A. Justice and John Vaughn, seek re-election; W. Hammond, the third member, declining to ask re-election. The new candidates are George D. Bepko, J. C. Williams, John M. Richardson, C. S. Fowler, Homer Hix, A. H. Glenn and W. D. Martin.

Gilbert S. Holland, of Holland, and T. H. Edmondson, present representative from Chattooga county in the legislature, is a candidate for state senator from the 42nd district, which is composed of Chattooga, Floyd and Bartow counties. He is unopposed.

News of the Week From Toccoa

BY JAMES D. PRATHER.

TOCCOA, Ga., Sept. 11.—News has been received here that William Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bailey, after two months of military instruction at the United States Military Academy, has begun his academic work. Bailey was appointed to the academy by Representative John S. Wood, and entered school July 1.

First Cotton.

The first bale of 1932 cotton in Stephens county was brought to Toccoa early Wednesday by Bill Williams, a farmer who lives near here. Ten cents a pound was paid for the bale, which price is double the amount paid for the first bale one year ago.

Kills Reptiles.

John Barber, who lives near here, was cutting wood in the vicinity of his home last week and suddenly heard some queer noises near by. Upon investigating he found two large rattlesnakes just ready to spring at him. Instead of running, he struck at the snakes with his axe and killed both of them with one blow. Barber found one snake to have 12 rattles and the other to have nine. Barber stated that the snakes were together, one a female and the other a male and he found the female snake to have a yellow streak across its back and the male to have a brown streak.

Women Voters Meet.

The League of Women Voters of Stephens county met at the courthouse Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Sandy Carter, president, called on Colonel George Allen, member of the county council, to introduce Hunter Manning, candidate for the Georgia public service commission, who made the principal talk. Mrs. J. W. Marks was elected delegate of the Stephens county league to the state convention, which will be held at Brenau College, Gainesville, November 2 and 3.

Returns from Europe.

Marion Gaston, of Toccoa, member of the senior class at the University of Georgia and football and baseball star, returned home Monday from a European tour. He declared that Holland and Switzerland were the most interesting and impressive countries he visited while abroad. Returning home on the steamship Statendam, Marion entered with 73 boys in a tournament of deck tennis and won the tournament. He has returned to Athens to begin football practice.

Political Rallies.

In last-minute appeals to the voters of Stephens county, T. Hicks Port, Columbus, spoke to the people here Saturday morning in the interest of Charles R. Crisp. In the afternoon Judge Wheeler, of Gainesville, spoke to Russell Springs and in the evening John N. Holder, Jefferson, candidate for governor, addressed the people of this county. Large congregations were present to hear all of the speakers and much interest was manifested.

Square Dance.

The citizens of Mineral Bluff, Ga., are giving the public an old-fashioned square dance on the new highway.

HERRIOT DEFENDS PARIS ARMS STAND

International Collaboration
"in Every Field"
Urged; Edge Speaks.

MEUX, France, Sept. 11.—(P)—Premier Edouard Herriot pleaded with the world today to understand French "uneasiness over the noise of certain dangerous manifestations" in connection with the armaments question as he accepted an American gift of a monument on the Marne battlefield.

The premier defended the French stand that Germany's demands for equality in arms must be taken to the League of Nations and he praised President Hoover's disarmament proposals in a fervent address heard by about one thousand persons.

His audience included President Albert Lebrun, General John J. Pershing and Marshal Henri Petain, American and French commanders-in-chief on the western front during the World War; Ambassador Walter E. Edge, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania; Joseph Paul-Boncour, minister of war, and Julien Durand, minister of commerce.

Speaking in behalf of the United States on the eighteenth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne, the American ambassador expressed the hope the memorial might inspire international collaboration in every field, material and moral.

Return Gift.
The monument—a giant figure of a woman supporting a wounded soldier—was to be a return gift for the Statue of Liberty, which France gave to the United States.

Premier Herriot said France was trying to associate herself "in the most useful way in the remarkable initiative" of President Hoover in seeking disarmament. He lauded Secretary of State Stimson's foreign relations council speech of August 8.

France is trying hard to understand the problems of the United States, he declared, asking for a reciprocal attempt by Americans.

"I would that honest, independent souls would understand our uneasiness over the noise of certain manifestations. Our uneasiness does not contradict our horror of a call to arms; it translates simply our modest desire to live in peace at home."

It is insufficient to simply wish for peace in order to obtain it, the premier added.

"But defense of a country is also a problem of time and space. We are accused of being warlike. Really, the desire for peace is a deep passion of every Frenchman. We demand that peace be taught everywhere on our soil."

"United States and France, despite the distance separating them, are destined to work together to develop the

Son of Gov. Roosevelt Recovers From Illness

LITTLE BOARS HEAD, N. H., Sept. 11.—(P)—James Roosevelt, eldest son of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, tonight was completely recovered from his recent illness and planned to join his father in Albany, N. Y., tomorrow.

Young Roosevelt will accompany the governor on his western trip and will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given for him in Topeka, Kan., Wednesday night by young democrats of six midwestern states.

UNION MEMBER SCORES EFFORT TO STEER VOTE

Referring to publication in a labor paper of an advertisement purporting to show that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, favored the candidacy of Governor Richard B. Russell Jr., J. J. Mulholland, member of International Association of Machinists, in a statement Sunday said:

"All members of the American Federation of Labor know that during the time our revered past president, Samuel Gompers, was leading us, it was the policy of the federation to steer clear of any political matters of this kind, and I feel sure that Mr. Gompers would, in anger, turn over in his grave if he could but know that the federation was injecting itself into a political issue in which it has no concern."

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO GRADY PATIENT

Stricken with a heart attack while seeking medical aid at Grady hospital Sunday afternoon, W. L. Butler, 55, of 4 Hoke street, expired just as he reached the door of the clinic.

Mr. Butler went to the hospital early Sunday afternoon and told a nurse that he was feeling slightly ill and thought that he needed medical attention. After giving his name and address, he was taken to the clinic by a doctor. At the door he collapsed and was dead within a few minutes. Funeral arrangements were not complete Sunday night.

virtues which assure human dignity and respect," he concluded.

The monument was turned over to the French people by John Ridgely Carter, former American minister and diplomat in various European and South American capitals.

Edge Speaks.
Ambassador Edge asked the French nation to accept the monument as "a symbol of the undying amity, the firm and constant friendship, which forever link the United States and France."

Pointing out that the idea of the 65-foot high monument originated in 1917 before the United States "took its place in the battle line," Mr. Edge said it was "visible evidence that mass opinion will invariably align itself behind a cause that is just and a principle that is right, thereby commanding the course of governments."

The town of Meux and the scene of ceremony, 30 miles from Paris, were bedecked with banners in honor of the American visitors.

Four million Americans contributed several thousand dollars to complete the monument, designed by Frederick MacMonnies and executed by Edmondo Quattrocchi upon a pedestal designed by Thomas Hastings.

BERLIN RECEIVES ANSWER ON ARMS

Germany May Quit Geneva Session Unless Demands Are Granted.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—(P)—The French reply to Germany's recent aide memoire demanding arms equality was handed to the foreign minister today, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, by the French ambassador, Francois Ponce, but official comment was withheld.

In authoritative quarters, however, there was a tendency to emphasize that "Germany's claims to equality are so well based that she can pursue her previously announced policy with a clear conscience."

This was generally interpreted to intimate that Germany would absent herself from the disarmament conference unless the French reply leaves a door open to settle Germany's claims before the convocation of the adjourned conference.

As summarized by Baron von Neurath last week, the German document demanded the right to security through equality in armaments.

The French reply is understood to say that Germany's arms were fixed by the Versailles treaty, and that Germany and France alone cannot change that agreement.

Most of the press has unreservedly supported the government's policy and denounced what was termed a French attempt to refer the issue to the League of Nations. The position here was that the matter was not affair of all the members of the League, but only of those powers which have taken a leading part in "armament discriminations" against Germany.

DUCE BELIEVES ISSUE MUST GO TO GENEVA

ROME, Sept. 11.—(P)—The reported categorical rejection by France of German armament claims has aroused no expressions of surprise in Italian government circles.

When Premier Mussolini discussed the German aide memoire demanding equality with the German ambassador, the Italian view was given out as believing Germany's stand was well founded juridically, but that the matter should be presented to the disarmament conference, whose decisions are still in abeyance.

Mine Union Chiefs Agree to Wage Slash

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 11.—(P)—The scale convention of District 11, United Mine Workers, have voted to adopt a three-year wage proposed by the Indiana operators calling for a 25 per cent reduction.

A contract between district officials of the union and representatives of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association was signed immediately. The new contract brings to an end the strike that has prevailed in the shaft mines of the state since March 31.

The 25 per cent reduction reduces the basic wage to $4.57 1/2 per cent day. The contract that expires March 31 provided for a basic wage of $6.10.

'Mystery Tree' of Georgia Intrigues Botanical World

Howell Caldwell, superintendent of the Ashford Nurseries, near Atlanta, at left, and Dr. W. B. Baker, biologist of Emory University, examining a gordonia lasianthus and discussing the differences in growth from that of the famous "Mystery Tree" of Georgia, the gordonia altamaha, a beautifully blossoming tree found on the banks of the Altamaha river in 1770 by Bartram and Michaux, two famous horticulturists.

BY ROY ROBERT.
From the region of the "Golden Isles of Georgia" a rare blossoming tree—the only one of its kind ever found in the world—was transplanted to a garden in Philadelphia more than 40 years ago and propagated by means of cutting and seeds. Now its progeny is attracting the interest of the botanical world at the national flower and garden pageant at Atlantic City, New Jersey.

For more than 60 years the "Mystery Tree" of Georgia has been the cynosure of biologists who have sought to fathom the apparent botanical "accident" that created a beautifully formed tree with snowy white blossoms that somewhat resemble roses, yet had the general format of the gardenia jasminoides, commonly known as the wax jasmine in Georgia.

In 1770 John Bartram and Andre Michaux, two of the world's greatest botanists, made a trip into the fastness of the Altamaha river banks in McIntosh county. Their search was to discover and examine a rare tree which had been described in such manner as to lead them to believe it to be a member of the gordonia family.

After days of search they found several gordonia lasianthus, and another gordonia which has been given three names—gordonia altamaha, for the river near which it was found; gordonia pubescens, and the franklinia altamaha, a name given it by Bartram to honor Benjamin Franklin. The latter tree was the famous "Mystery Tree," the like of which has never been found since.

Tree Transplanted.
The search for other gordonia altamaha trees continued until 1790, during which time the tree found by Bartram and Michaux was transplanted to Philadelphia, where it thrived for a number of years and died. The botanists, however, had carefully propagated the tree and there are a few specimens in the United States at the present time, but so far as Atlanta botanists know, there is none in Georgia.

While the gordonia is found in 15 or more species in subtropical and tropical Asia, it has been found elsewhere only in the south Atlantic states of the United States. Scientists know not what botanical tragedy occurred between 1770 and 1790 when the trees disappeared. No gordonia has been found in a wild state in America since that time, according to L. H. Bailey, known as the dean of American botanists, and a biologist at Cornell University.

Before the gordonia disappeared in its wild state in Georgia, horticulturists had carefully propagated the rare trees and at present many nurseries have them for sale. The Ashford Park nursery, near Atlanta, has six specimens of gordonia lasianthus growing in a semi-wild state, and other nurseries in the state have several of the plants.

Distinctions Shown.
While the lasianthus species has somewhat the general appearance of the altamaha to the casual eye, the botanical difference is marked, according to Dr. W. B. Baker, biologist and botanist at Emory University. The former produces a white flower, camellia like in form, waxy and faintly fragrant, about two and one-half inches in diameter. It blossoms in May and June.

Georgia's "Mystery Tree" differs in that the tree grew to greater height—more than 30 feet—and the pure white blossoms, 3 inches in diameter, with short, waxy petals, blossomed in September and October, one of the few in the world to bloom in autumn.

Scientists describe the "Mystery Tree" as raising a slender pyramidal form amid the swamps of the Altamaha, overhung with an over-heated thick growth. There, like a gem amid the tidlands, the altamaha stood with the setting sun pouring through its foliage into the depths of the Altamaha. Michaux came upon the botanical wonder.

Quickly, the legend relates, Michaux sought Bartram to view the wonder of a tree never seen before. Surrounded by green and serried ranks of swamp growth, the "Mystery Tree" blossomed, the pure white flowers partially hidden by scarlet leaves from 5 to 6 inches in length. During the spring and summer before the buds burst, the leaves are sparingly serrate, bright green and shiny above, pubescent below.

The gordonia family of trees was named for James Gordon, a famous English nurseryman.

FORNEY R. YARBROUGH IS LAID TO LAST REST

Final rites for Forney R. Yarbrough, widely-known railroad official, who died Friday night at a private hospital, were conducted Sunday afternoon at the residence at 1301

Euclid avenue, Dr. J. B. Peters, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, officiated, and interment was in the College Park cemetery.

Mr. Yarbrough was chief law agent of the A. & W. P. railroad, the Western Railroad of Alabama and the Georgia railroad. He was formerly president of the Auburn Alumni Association, and was well known in Atlanta, where he had made his home for many years. He was a Shriner and a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

ARIZONA'S GOVERNOR FACES PRIMARY FIGHT

Seven-Time Chief Executive of State Meets Acid Test in Balloting Tuesday.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 11.—(P)—Arizona's political battleground, awaiting the firing of next Tuesday's primary guns, is the most extensive in recent years.

Seven times governor, George W. P. Hunt, democrat, faces the crucial test of his career. Four stalwarts of his own party seek to force his retirement before November.

Congressman Lewis W. Douglas and Senator Carl Hayden, both democrats, are campaigning on the issue of their soldier bonus and prohibition stands.

Two besides Douglas seek nomination, and three are after Hayden's senate seat.

The republican party, for the first time in the state's history, has placed a full ticket in the field.

Democratic registration outnumbered republican approximately four to one, which is normal for this state in its biennial September balloting.

Arizona has been dominantly democratic in state politics, and republican in national, at least in regard to the presidency.

Only twice has the state been ruled by a republican governor, but only twice, also, have its votes in the electoral college gone to a democratic president—Woodrow Wilson.

Harlow H. Akers, young Phoenix lawyer, was the first to announce against Hayden for the senate and took the lead in announcing an anti-prohibition stand before the democratic national convention adopted its platform.

Hayden has announced he will support the democratic platform. He also has taken a stand against "special legislation" until public expenditures are cut, which is interpreted generally as opposition to bonus legislation in its present form. Akers, in opposition, has bid for the veteran vote.

William J. Fellows and Walter H. Colyar, the other aspirants, have indicated they will follow the "will of the people."

Arizona will vote in November on a referendum for repeal of the state prohibition laws.

Douglas is confronted chiefly with a demand for justification of his negative vote on the question of immediate bonus payment, as against the announced policy of one of his adversaries—Judge Marlin H. Phelps, of Maricopa county—for full payment.

Also, Douglas and Phelps are at odds on the prohibition question. Douglas having recorded his vote in favor of bringing the "beer bill" out of committee, Phelps opposes repeal.

William Coxon, secretary of the Arizona corporation and spokesman throughout the west for the Arizona copper tariff commission, is his other adversary.

All the democratic aspirants for both senate and congressional seats are pledged to advisory recall, as are also the republicans, Ralph Cameron, for the senate, and Benton Dick and H. B. Wilkinson for congress.

Governor Hunt's primary opponents are Dr. B. B. Moeur, Tempe physician; K. Berry Person, Arizona attorney-general; Frederick Sutter, president of the state senate and foe of utilities now operating in the state, and Webster C. Reed, who has campaigned on horseback pleading for common people in office.

TWO NEGRO HOUSES DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire of an undetermined origin destroyed two negro residences at 1009 and 1013 Mayson-Turner road, early Saturday night, according to fire department records. The blaze began in the home of Dora Norwood, at 1013 Mayson-Turner road, at about 8:45 o'clock, and spread to the home of Alice Cromer next door, before it could be controlled. Firemen were unable to learn the cause of the fire.

'SLATE' REVEALED BY MRS. HEALEY

All Candidates With Exception of Congressman Lankford Approved.

All of Georgia's incumbent congressmen save one, Representative W. C. Lankford, of Douglas, and both candidates for the United States senate are satisfactory to the women's organization for National Prohibition Reform, Mrs. William T. Healey, state chairman, announced Saturday.

Likewise, practically all of those candidates contesting the incumbents entertain satisfactory views regarding submission of the issue to the people, Mrs. Healey said.

Mrs. Healey added that in the untested districts the candidates, with the exception of Congressman M. C. Taylor, of Dalton, have agreed to vote for submission.

"The sentiment generally among candidates for congress and the senate is so strong in favor of submission that a referendum in a foregone conclusion. We as an organization are opposing no one in Georgia save Congressman Lankford, as we feel that a vote is certain and we are not to do any campaigning until the issue has been laid before the people."

Mrs. Healey said that inasmuch as both Congressmen Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, and Governor Richard B. Russell entertain identical views regarding the dry law the organization will refrain from making an endorsement of either candidate. Mrs. Healey, personally, has been working for the nomination of Congressman Crisp, as have been a large majority of the members of her executive committee.

In the fifth district, which includes Atlanta, Mrs. Healey said her organization leaned toward Congressman Robert Ranspach because of his seniority and experience, the same situation prevailing in the cases of Congressmen Carl Vinson and his opponent, Judge Earl Camp, of Dublin, both of whom are strongly in favor of the referendum.

"By virtue of Congressman Vinson's long service and his other qualifications his re-nomination will be entirely satisfactory to us," Mrs. Healey said. "It is the policy of our organization not only to obtain congressmen and senators favorable to our cause, but also men and women who otherwise will be an attribute to our governmental structure."

Mrs. Healey added that intensive campaigning on the part of her organization would be launched in Georgia following a meeting of the organization's national executive committee at Minneapolis on September 23, which she would attend as a representative of the Georgia division.

GAINS 16 POUNDS, ENJOYING BEST HEALTH IN YEARS

MRS. LENA BRADY

When Sargon was given to the world well-known authority, it was predicted that it would become one of the great outstanding remedies of the age, because the discoveries on which it was based represented some of the latest findings of Medical Science. However, little did they realize that this new and modern compound, through its matchless accomplishments would become a household word throughout the Nation in such a short time.

Sargon has literally taken the country by storm, and is helping to bring new health, strength and energy to thousands unable heretofore to find relief. As an instance of its remarkable powers, read the statement of Mrs. Lena Brady, well-known and highly esteemed resident of 457 Edgewood Ave., Macon, Ga., who said:

"An actual gain of sixteen pounds and the best health I've had in years, is what the Sargon treatment did for me. Nothing ever surprised me more in my life than my quick and remarkable improvement."

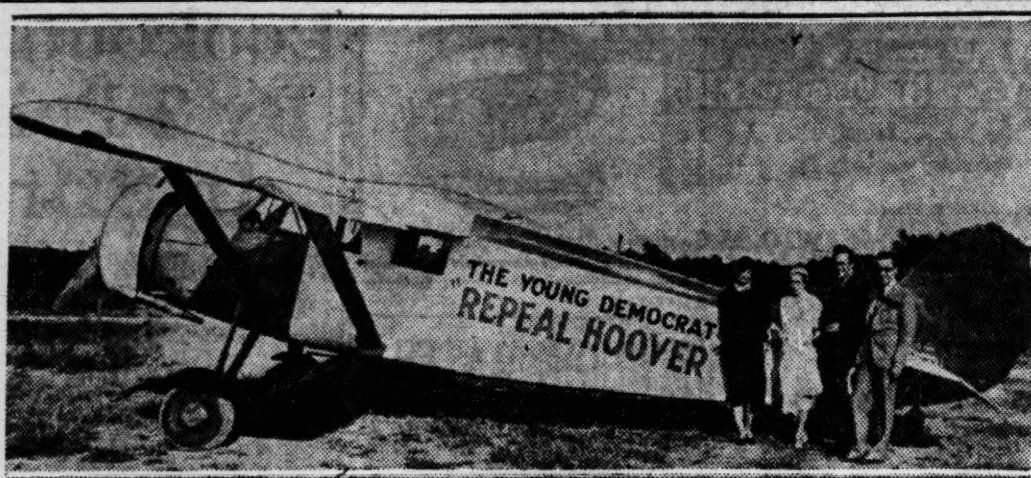

"I had suffered twelve years with stomach trouble and indigestion. I was very sallow and badly constipated. I lost weight and was very nervous. My sleep was restless and broken, and during the day I was weak, tired and worn out. I also suffered at times with terrible headaches."

"Before I had finished my first bottle of Sargon I was eating and drinking I wanted. I am no longer nervous. I get up mornings feeling rested and refreshed, and am so much stronger I feel like a different person."

"The Sargon Pills ended my constipation, and my skin has cleared. I am certainly thankful for this wonderful treatment."

End the Depression--Repeal Hoover

"End the Depression--Repeal Hoover." That's the slogan of the Young Democrats of America, and by selling their slogan to automobile owners they hope to raise a substantial fund to assist in defraying the expenses of the Roosevelt-Garner campaign. J. A. Bolich Jr., of Raleigh, N. C., flew to Atlanta Saturday with a plenitude of the tags which are to be sold over Georgia under the supervision of R. J. Reynolds Jr., president of the Young Georgia Democrats. The plan is to visit the capital city of every state in the Union before election. Bolich left Atlanta Saturday afternoon. He will be at Topeka Wednesday when Governor Roosevelt makes the first speech of his transcontinental campaign tour. The above photograph of Bolich and his plane was made at Raleigh Friday as he started on his long mission. He is shown with Mrs. Joseph Scott, secretary of the Young Democrats, Mrs. Tyre Taylor, wife of the president of the national organization, and President Taylor.

Bern's Will and Other Papers Likely To Be Divulged Today

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Silence as to the motive for the suicide of a week ago of Paul Bern, motion picture producer, continued today after a long conference between his brother, Henry Bern, of New York, and his film star widow, Jean Harlow.

A statement clearing up the strange case, with its complications of a mysterious woman in Paul Bern's past and a farewell note to Miss Harlow, speaking of a "great wrong" and Bern's "subject of humiliation," was forecast last night by Attorney Mendel Silberberg.

Henry Bern had promised a statement, Silberberg said, after he had talked again with Miss Harlow. They were together from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. today with the star's stepfather, Marino Bello, but when Bern emerged from the Bello home he announced he had "nothing to say."

"Will you have anything to say later?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he replied.

Silberberg, at Miss Harlow's attorney, said Paul Bern's presumed last will is in a deposit box in a downtown Los Angeles bank with other important papers, and that the box may be opened tomorrow. He said he could not venture a statement as to whether a solution of the problem will be found in the contents of the box.

Bern's unclad body was found shortly before noon last Monday in a dressing room of the Benedict canyon home he gave Miss Harlow at the time of their wedding last July 2.

There was a bullet through the head, and one hand clutched a revolver. The note and an automatic pistol were in an adjoining bedroom. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide, with motive undetermined.

Almost at once reports arose of a previous union on the producer's life involving payments of money by him over a period of about twenty years, and a will in New York leaving his estate to "my wife, Dorothy Millette."

These crystallized in the purported producer had a definite financial arrangement with Miss Millette.

"According to the arrangements agreed upon, I am enclosing a money order for $100, due on May 14."

"Mr. Bern has already left on his vacation but I am at the office in the meantime, and if I can help you in any way at any time, please don't hesitate to ask me."

"I hope you are comfortably and happily settled in your new home."

"Sincerely yours,"

"IRENE HARRISON, Secretary to Mr. Bern."

Contents of the trunk opened by police indicated Miss Millette was accustomed to supplying herself from the finest dress and lingerie shops.

Gowns, suits and shoes had been purchased in the most exclusive shops of New York and San Francisco. A dozen pairs of hand-made shoes, heavy silk and satin pajamas and other apparel were found.

I urge the national convention of the American Legion, now assembled in Portland, Ore., to demand immediate payment of the bonus for the benefit of more than a million destitute veterans."

"These men are in dire need and are looking to their comrades on this occasion to demand relief by the payment to them of the just, severely delayed bonus."

Waters reiterated he was fighting only for the veterans, and "not in the interest of any political organization."

The 1928 election, which republican leaders declared could be taken as "a criterion," resulted in re-election of an victory in the gubernatorial contest by 83,000 votes.

The importance of the election as a factor in influencing the governor states was seen in the concentration of ace speakers of both parties in Maine during the closing days of the campaign. Odeen L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, wound up the republican campaign last night in an address here.

Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts, and Governor Joseph B. Ely, of Boston, concluded the democratic drive Friday night.

Democratic speakers aggressively attacked the administration record during the economic crisis as calling for a needed change.

Republican leaders, on the other hand, declared the administration of the nation and state offered no criticism on the part of the people and that democratic contentions were not based on facts.

tel (where the baggage was left) is a fairly reasonable and attractive one.

"If you do change to any other place we will find some way of supplying you with funds in a manner convenient for you."

"My love and best wishes always," "PAUL."

A letter signed with the name of Irene Harrison, Bern's secretary, indicated the producer had a definite financial arrangement with Miss Millette.

The letter, also on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stationery, and addressed to Miss Millette at the Plaza hotel here, follows:

"Dear Miss Millette:

"According to the arrangements agreed upon, I am enclosing a money order for $100, due on May 14."

"Mr. Bern has already left on his vacation but I am at the office in the meantime, and if I can help you in any way at any time, please don't hesitate to ask me."

The prohibition issue was sharply drawn between the congressional aspirants.

The democratic nominees—Joseph E. F. Connolly in the first district, Edward C. Moran Jr., in the second, and John G. Utterback in the third—stood for outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Their opponents were avowedly dry. Congressmen Carroll L. Beedy, of Portland, and John E. Nelson, of Augusta, seeking re-election, having asserted the people had given no mandate for a change.

Former Governor Ralph D. Brewster, who defeated Congressman Donald F. Snow in the primary election, opposed Utterback in the third district.

The electorate also will vote on a proposed increase in the gasoline tax from 4 to 5 cents. In the face of much opposition, candidates for office have left the subject severely alone. The same proposal was quashed in a referendum two years ago.

LEGION MEETING TO OPEN TODAY: 50,000 ASSEMBLED

Titles of national political candidates continued in all the hotel lobbies, which were criss-crossed by the banners of rival candidates.

Bands, drum corps, sirens, bells and whistles turned Portland's downtown into canyons of echoing sound, as the Legionnaires made holiday of convention flags, banners, festoons, placards and bunting brightened the city.

On the waterfront lay trim warships of the United States and Canada on dress parade, with the USS Nebraska, temporary flagship of the nation's entire navy, occupying the honor position. Her four-star flag flying at the peak denoted she carries Admiral R. H. Leigh, chief of the United States battle force.

WATERS ASKS LEGION TO DEMAND BONUS

Waters said he had been unable to

GERMAN CREDIT PARLEY DEFERRED

No Matters of Importance Before Committee, Wiggins Announces.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Albert H. Wiggins, chairman of the German credit (standstill) committee of 1932, today announced that its next meeting, scheduled for October 1, had been adjourned indefinitely.

This marked the first time since the committee was formed to effect the gradual thawing out of approximately $1,200,000,000 of short-term credits advanced to Germany, that it has been able to enjoy a breathing spell. Wiggins' statement indicated that there was no need for a further consultation over Germany's credits at this time.

As no matters of particular importance have been presented for discussion at the meeting which under the German credit agreement of 1932 was scheduled to take place on October 1, the various creditor committees, in accord with the German committee, have decided to adjourn the meeting subject to call by the chairman.

Such later date as he may consider suitable or at the request of any one of the committees," he said.

The German creditor committee, known as the standstill committee, is composed of banking representatives of Germany, as the debtor, and of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Holland and six smaller European countries, as creditors.

The standstill agreement, which was designed to lift the pressure of world creditors on Germany until that nation could nurse its financial affairs back into something like normal vigor, was originally signed in February, 1931. On its expiration, last February, a new agreement was drawn to run until next February 23.

Some repayment has been made since then, but the amount has been small. Wiggins, as chairman of the international committee, also represents 101 American banks which participated in the extension of short-term credits to Germany.

Previous meetings of the standstill committee have been held in Berlin, Basle and London, but it was understood today that the adjourned meeting may next be held in New York.

Wiggins, who is chairman of the governing board of the Chase National Bank of New York, was said to have extended an invitation to other committee members at the last standstill meeting. The response then appeared favorable.

Eager for a meeting in New York would be the first time that the committee had conferred away from Europe. It would probably bring together on American soil the most powerful array of international banking talent ever to assemble in this country.

With approximately one-half of the present frozen short-term credits having been furnished by American institutions, it was understood that the German bank representatives on the standstill committee were especially eager to accept the invitation to visit and to confer in this country.

The standstill committee, when originally formed, planned regular periodic meetings in order to give debtor and creditor alike a chance to exchange views.

Depression Definitely Over, Prices Rising, Says J. P. Allen

"As far as the retail business of Atlanta is concerned, the depression is definitely over," J. P. Allen, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association and head of the department store which bears his name, said Sunday.

"I don't mean to imply that we are headed toward a boom such as we had between 1925 and 1929," Mr. Allen warned. "There is more confidence on the part of the public than there has been in the last three years."

"Conditions today are virtually reversed from what they were a year ago. Then prices were steadily declining and there seemed to be no assurance of stabilization. It will not be possible within the next five years to say things as cheaply as today, although in the past few weeks prices have advanced."

"Retail business in Atlanta this fall should show an increase of from 10 to 20 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Our own business has increased substantially since September 1, and it is not all a seasonal increase."

"Prices of commodities—cotton, grain, leather meat and the others—are steadily increasing. This means that retailers and consumers are resuming buying, for nobody buys on a falling market. Prices are actually showing increases. The manufacturers have increased their prices from 10 to 20 per cent."

"The closest of the average woman is empty. After three years of denial, she is beginning to replenish it. There never was a better opportunity than now for the purchase of clothes. Virtually all the merchandise in the Atlanta stores was bought on a low market. Scarcely any article in a store today can be duplicated at the prices paid 60 to 90 days ago."

"The improvement in retail trade began about three weeks ago."

RELINQUISH RETAIL SALES IN EXCESS OF LAST YEAR

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 11.—Kelvinator retail sales throughout the country during the months of July and August were far in excess of sales during the same months of last year, according to J. S. Sayre, sales manager of the Kelvinator corporation.

The heavy volume of retail sales is accounted for by the second Kelvinator derby, a sales contest which commenced July 1 and terminated August 31, and which was won by a distributor in Detroit.

"We inaugurated the derby contest in 1931," continued Mr. Sayre, "and it proved such a success that we made it an annual sales contest fixture."

BUSINESS BEGINS WEEK WITH ENCOURAGING GAINS

UNITED PRESS Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(UP)—Business began the "fall" season this week with encouraging gains, and with thousands of workers recalled in anticipation of heavier orders.

Practically all the leading business indices were at their best levels since early July. Several, such as railroad car loadings and electrical power production, showed greater than seasonal expansion.

The vast Ford factories reopened at River Rouge after a shutdown of three weeks, and many other companies speeded up manufacture of various fall merchandise. This tendency has been pronounced in the textile industry.

Cooler weather in many sections of the country gave retail trade much-needed stimulus. Many stores reported heavier business than in many weeks.

One of the most hopeful signs of business improvement was the steadily increasing number of freight cars being handled by the railroads. Loadings last week were the highest since May, and showed the fourth successive weekly increase.

Consumption of electric energy, which has shown successive gains in the past three weeks, for the week ended September 3 was only 10.4 per cent under a year ago, compared with a loss of 12.3 per cent in the preceding week.

The office equipment industry, one of the first to feel minor business fluctuations, is operating at 26 to 32 per cent above a month ago.

The rate of steel production, while disappointing, this week rose to 14.1 per cent of capacity, against 13 per cent last week, and with further gains indicated.

While the rise in securities and commodities has been checked by heavy profit-taking, bankers feel that many prices are out of line, in view of the improved outlook.

Businessmen believe that the farmers will be among the first to feel the upward tide of business and are closely watching developments in agricultural sections.

BRIGHT SPOTS SEEN BY THE UNITED PRESS

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(UP)—Another decrease in bank closings was reported by the "American Banker" Saturday, suspensions for the past week numbering only nine, the lowest since last March.

WASHINGTON—Orders received by lumber mills climbed further in the last four weeks—exceeding production by 67 per cent in the week ended September 3, according to the Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

OMAHA, Neb.—Four big packing plants here recalled 450 men to work because of increased live stock receipts.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Substantial improvement in the textile situation in the south has resulted in placement by several mills of large orders for new equipment.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Certo plant of the General Foods Corporation, notified 127 employees to return to work October 3.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—J. W. Carter & Co., shoe manufacturers, shipped more shoes this week than in any week in the 34 years of the company's history, it was reported.

BOSTON.—The Hub Hosiery Mills at Lowell, Mass., has increased production from three to five days a week, according to the New England council.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Louisville & Nashville railroad called 500 men back to work in the local car repair shops.

NEW YORK.—Business failures in August dropped to the lowest level of the year, Bradstreet's weekly report today. Bankruptcies during the month totaled 2,315, compared with 2,547 in July.

Holmes Opens Today.

Registration and examinations for entrance to Holmes Institute will begin today for the 15th annual session of the school. Regular class work will not begin until September 15. All departments have received new equipment and several new teachers have been secured as departmental heads. Children from the age of 6 up will be boarded at the school while their parents are working. It was said. More applications for entrance in the automotive department have been received than in any other.

INDUSTRIAL DRIVE PLANS REVEALED

Chairman of U. S. Rehabilitation Movement To Launch Campaign.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee on industrial rehabilitation, one of the groups set up at the recent White House business conference, announced plans today for an extensive organization to accomplish his committee's assignment.

Robertson, who is chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, said he will announce the membership of his committee next week.

Its first step, he announced, will be to organize subcommittees in each of the federal reserve districts, each with a chairman and vice chairman.

Robertson's plan provides that these officials, in turn, organize smaller committees within the boundaries of the various industrial areas in the reserve districts. The chairman of these smaller committees will appoint local business and industrial leaders to serve on their organizations.

"Will Merge Leadership." This organization plan, Robertson said, "will bring together industrial and business leadership in the principal production centers of the United States and will enroll important executives in the program to start the orders for equipment, machinery and plant facilities in motion."

"Each federal reserve district committee and industrial area subcommittee will approach its job with a general knowledge of the replacement needs of the manufacturers and will be equipped with ample evidence proving that modernization is the right step to take without further delay."

The committee will point out to factory owners, Robertson said, that run-down machinery can best be replaced now because financial and credit conditions are improved and purchase and installation costs for machinery are low.

Robertson said that in industries devoted to the making of machinery and equipment approximately 1,020,000 workers had been deprived of employment since 1929, at a total loss of income of more than $3,000,000,000 annually.

Atlanta Council of Girl Scouts Plans Troop Work for Fall Season

Girl Scout leaders of the Atlanta council begin their year's plans for troop activities with Mrs. J. M. Norman acting as the president of their association for the fall months. At the first meeting of this group in interesting activities and possibilities for added enjoyment for the Girl Scouts were discussed, including definite plans for an older girls' program. Those who have charged themselves with the task of counseling the young find themselves faced, in a period of rapidly changing economic values, with the question of how they may most wisely perform their duty. In connection with this task, in spite of the special problems of the last few years, some new and heartening features have come to light.

Older American children are shouldering unaccustomed responsibilities in many homes, and school work, when events run more smoothly, one did not know they possessed. School sponsors, whose budgets have been compressed, report that the children themselves have taken over some part of the work, and even of the planning, formerly done by adults, in order that these normal children of the program, which were threatened need not be entirely lost. Parents who, faced with curtailment, dreaded the possible loss of their children's educational and cultural chances in life, have found in many cases that the family as a whole, far from crippling the development of these older boys and girls, have opened new doors to individual and co-operative attainment. Privately hit by the blow of the war, they have been able to grant them more freedom, with withdrawal of them being imminent, as worth a valiant personal effort, more important than the loss of character, in many cases, than the "opportunities" formerly considered necessary.

Program Prepared. Girl Scout program was prepared in this country two decades ago to fit young girls to meet the emergencies of adult life without loss of confidence. Since the emergency is at hand, communities may rejoice that these years of preparation have been granted them, and that much of the mental and moral equipment of the great Girl Scout family is in working order.

One of the most vital questions this year will be that of directing, in far as lies in her power, the choice of these older girls in her troop who are ready to plan for professions and a no less important consideration: that of a happy selection of a secondary occupation. It has been apparent recently that a well-developed secondary occupation is often worth something, in an unlooked-for crisis, as means of temporary self-support. The diversity of the Girl Scout program as a whole should stand its followers in good stead now; perhaps a new meaning is to be discovered in its insistence on human fundamentals such as the development of self-protective and self-dependent faculties in out-of-door and home life, and the application of that neighborliness so directly important to human society from its most primitive and pioneer stages onward. Since the disappearance of the "sure" job for girls as soon as they leave school or college, it has begun to be felt that if a girl is particularly fitted for a special kind of work, it is the utmost importance that she should have the best possible training. The well-trained person has the best chance at stability of occupation; the person who has sufficiently developed a secondary occupation possesses at least a possible means of sustaining morale, if the major occupation fails.

Work Tests Ability. From the time the girl becomes a tenderfoot until she is a senior Scout, she is constantly trying out vocations and avocations, even though she may be unconscious of the fact. Her records are bound to show that among the many requirements she fulfills, some more creditably than she did others; her leader and examiners, by reviewing the facts with her, may actually hit her with a forward vision in her self-analysis and self-realization. The badge tests in Scouting work in two ways: The girl is tested for her ability, and at the same time she tests the work in question for what it has to offer her. And through it all, the pleasure of congenial companionship, the expectation of a service she may render and the knowledge of a task done as well as possible gives her the immediate enjoyment that makes her want to continue in Girl Scouting.

The local Girl Scout office provides training and help for the leaders of all groups and is always ready to give information and advice to any young woman who is interested in becoming a leader in this great game of Girl Scouting. The headquarters are located in the Richmond hotel, sixth floor, and is always open on week days, to give help and information.

Classes in Art Will Be Held By Mrs. Hinman

Mrs. George B. Hinman, chairman of the art division of the Atlanta Woman's Club, widely known authority on art, issues an invitation to club members and the interested public to meet with her at the clubhouse, 1150 Peachtree street, Tuesday morning, September 13, at 10:30 o'clock, to discuss plans for a series of classes in art.

Mrs. Hinman is a lecturer of note and has a collection of beautiful reproductions, in color, of many of the world's famous masterpieces. She has gathered these pictures in her extensive travels in this country and abroad and they lend an especial interest to her lectures. Her advanced psychology of teaching presents the history of art through the personalities of the subjects. Her presentation of material is unusual and very interesting, for she places stress on the life of the subject rather than upon the painting, and deals with both in an entertaining and different manner.

The Atlanta Woman's Club is particularly anxious to open its cultural activities to the women of Atlanta, and so the classes formed by Mrs. Hinman will be open both to members and non-members of the club. Mrs. Hinman desires to secure from the group meeting with her on Tuesday morning an expression of various preferences in the study of art. Plans will then be formulated for a definite program of work during the winter. Mrs. Hinman cordially urges all women interested in any phase of art to be present on Tuesday morning.

B. and P. Members Will Participate In Poster Contest

A poster contest, in which the Atlanta Club and clubs in Georgia will participate, is being sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs through the state federation. The contest is offering an award of $50 and a prize of $5 is offered by the state federation for the poster which best portrays the contribution the business and professional women of Georgia are making to the state.

The contest is the third conducted by the national federation. The first, held in 1930, resulted in an award to Ralph Brown, student at the Cleveland, Ohio, School of Art. A southern girl, 17 years of age, named King of Winston-Salem, N. C., captured the 1931 award. This year the prize winning posters in each of the 48 states will be sent to the national contest closing November 10. The winner will be announced and a photographic reproduction of the prize-winning poster directed to the state federation. Independent Woman, the official organ of the national federation.

Rules for the contest are as follows: 1. Each contestant may submit only one poster. 2. The design must be bold and simple with no graduation of tone, and suitable for reproduction in not more than three colors. 3. The poster may be with or without a title. 4. The entry submitted must be of such proportions that it will increase or reduce to a poster measuring eleven inches in width by 17 inches in height. 5. Posters should be judged by well qualified persons who represent varying points of view. An ideal choice would be an artist, a publicity or advertising specialist and a representative of the federation.

The local judges will be announced later. Mrs. Flora S. Osburn is publicity chairman for the Atlanta Club of Business and Professional Women. Flashlights, the monthly bulletin of the Atlanta club, announces a course in public speaking open to members beginning Tuesday, September 20. The course will continue weekly and will be sponsored by the education committee of which Miss Maude Sewell is chairman.

Mrs. Maude Gilbert, of the Two-Cent Letter Company, is editor of Flashlights, which has blossomed into a quarto edition under her capable management. The publication is making friends not only among club members but others who are interested in it as the medium of business and professional women of Atlanta. The dinner meeting takes place at the Wincoff hotel, Wednesday evening, September 14. These meetings will continue at the Wincoff through the winter.

"400" Club Honored. Last Wednesday evening the East Atlanta "400" Club held a bridge party at the home of Mrs. F. M. Dodd on Underwood avenue. High scores were made by Miss Marguerite Garrison and Leon Wilkins.

Guests included Misses Marguerite Garrison, Alva Goulden, Betty Janssens, Winnie Wilkins, Lucille Benson, Melva Moore and Marion Dodd, Gray Dodd, M. C. Banks, Ernest Thacker, Ralph Irie, Barney Jackson, Coy Nunnally and Leon Wilkins.

MAISON MAN FOUND DEAD ON RAILROAD. MAISON, Ga., Sept. 11.—(P)—The mangled body of Monroe Thompson, 24-year-old Macon, was found Sunday morning between tracks of the Macon, Dublin & Savannah railroad, near Frankfort, Ga. Early Sunday morning he had told relatives that he intended to go down hunting. A shotgun and several unexploded shells were found near the body. Nothing in the man's pockets had been disturbed. Near the body a faithful dog had kept a vigil until officers and residents of the vicinity arrived. He backed viciously at the investigators.

Railroad officials said that no report of the accident had been made and that such incidents were promptly reported. Coronor Thompson conducted an inquest Monday morning. Funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD FOR BULLOCK COUNTY. WAYCROSS, Ga., Sept. 11.—Two men giving their names as J. B. Davis and G. J. Donaldson, were arrested here yesterday by city police as suspects in a recent safe-blowing episode at Statesboro. They had in their possession a full set of safe-cracking paraphernalia, according to Patrolmen Pierce W. Farr and J. D. DeLoach. They have been delivered to Sheriff Tillman of Bullock county.

The two men were arrested in front of a residence on Lincoln street, where they had rented a room, the pair answering descriptions furnished the Waycross police department by Statesboro authorities.

Y. W. C. A. Will Outline Plans For Fall at Camp Highland

The Y. W. C. A. Camp Highland will be the scene of setting-up conferences during the next few weeks when "Y" secretaries and club council members gather to outline activities for the fall and winter months. Miss Carrie Lynn Haggood, industrial secretary, and officers of the Rainbow Club will be at Camp Highland next week-end, September 17-18, and the following week-end, September 24-25. Miss Flora Hatcher and the Business Girls' council will enjoy a retreat to Highland hills, where classes will be planned that will be stimulating and beneficial to the largest number; entertainments considered and the entire year's program anticipated.

Following the precedent set last year by the valuable staff setting-up conference, the Y. W. C. A. staff will return to Camp Highland for a short conference, leaving the Administration building, 37 Auburn avenue, in charge of board members and volunteer assistants. At this time Miss Clara Nolen, general secretary, will present the highlights of the forthcoming year: mutual problems will be discussed and every phase of association work will be studied in order to formulate the best methods of co-operation and the most effective ways of extending "Y" service to the largest number of women and girls. It is the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. to provide the three essentials characterizing a well-rounded character: "responsibility, recreation and affection, or work, play, love." Realizing that girls and women need aid and counsel in becoming happily adjusted to new-found leisure time, the Y. W. C. A. will endeavor to incorporate in its programs feasible suggestions which will encourage adult study, cultural advancement and lead the individual to discover inner resources and attain the highest development of the Young Women's Christian Association. Miss Hatcher with the Business Girls, Miss Algood with the industrial girls, Miss Fridmore with the Girl Reserves, Miss Keller and Mrs. Drummond with gymnasium and swimming, Miss Richards with the membership and Mrs. Kyle at the "Y" residence will begin the fall work with the earnest desire to give trained leadership and unqualified service to all types of girls and women.

At a meeting of the residence committee Thursday Mrs. Robert M. Crumley, chairman, appointed Mrs. Frank West to plan interesting recreational features once a month for girls living at the Y. W. C. A. residence, 82 Baker street, N. W. Mrs. W. P. Nicholson, Jr., of the health education committee of the "Y" was welcomed to the committee and will explain the activities offered by this department and invite the residence girls to share them.

Among recent guests at the residence were Miss Anne Smith, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. at Mobile, Ala.; Mrs. E. W. Hall, former secretary of the "Y" in Miami; Miss Sue Hill, former member of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. board of directors; Mrs. E. W. Hall, former secretary of the "Y" at the University of Florida; Miss Amanda Johnson, professor of history at G. S. C. W., Milledgeville, Georgia.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

What can an 18-year-old girl do when her parents do not trust her though she has never given them any cause to distrust her? I don't know what it is to go to a party of any sort without my mother's tagging along. I have to accept the friends they choose for me or have none at all. They would allow me to have dates but the boys are not keen for girls that are shadowed by their mothers. Mother wonders why the boys don't come to see me more and has even suggested that it is high time I had a proposal. Can you make them see how I can make them see the injustice they are doing me?

STUMPED.

Answer:

This seems to be a very common complaint among the girls of this generation. It is easy to understand the public of parents as they see the results (often fatal) of too much liberty in the lives of the girls and boys around them, yet it is not easy to sympathize with those parents that police the lives of their grown daughters, as if they were potential criminals. The fact that such parents always get what's coming to them in some way or other, the daughters that are being cheated out of normal association with the young people of their set. Since these same parents are so quick to recognize the results of too much liberty given to the young people by some parents, it does seem that they should be equally keen in observing what happens to parents that are unreasonable and unsympathetic with the children who, in justice, ask for more liberty.

Here is what usually happens in a home such as this one: The girl gets the idea that her mother is old-fashioned and not competent to pass upon the social customs of the day. The mother separates the girl from her own hands and has dates on the sly, either at the home of a friend, or in an automobile, or at the movies. The mother loses the most precious thing in her relationship with the child—her confidence. And if the restrictions are not soon removed she may actually lose the girl in a run-away marriage. Yet, blinded by everything but the single thing that occupies her mind, namely, her desire to chaperone and protect her child from blighting experience, she persists in imposing her will upon the child's life and thus the mother travels straight to her doom.

It is probably true that never in modern times have two generations been separated by a wider social gulf than that which separates the young girl of today and her mother. Yet, despite the cataclysmic changes that have taken place in social life, the basic standards for the well-raised girl of today are the same as in all time. Temptations may come with more frequency because in fast living age, everything moves faster. But temptations are not new. The heart remains the same. Character is strong or weak as in other days. And after all is said and done, the girl who makes her decisions as to how she will meet temptation. Does any mother fancy that she can solve her daughter's problems for her, when her daughter has arrived at the age of discretion? If so, she will have a sad awakening.

Any thinking parents must realize that the lines of protection she must throw out about her daughter must be thrown out early in life. Character is formed before a girl reaches the age of 18 and if the quality of it is not guaranteed against improper conduct with the boy, then the strictest chaperonage won't amount to a row of beans, except to irritate and antagonize the daughter.

At the age of 18 a girl should have the privilege of choosing her own friends and making dates for dances and parties to which she may go, unchaperoned by her parents. If the daughter cannot convince her mother that she is entitled to this much liberty, perhaps her mother should be a trusted friend of the family to intercede for her.

REVELLERS ESCAPE

DARIEN, Conn., Sept. 11.—(P)—Several hundred wealthy revellers, clad in the nondescript clothing of a "shipwreck party," escaped safely early this morning as fire destroyed the exclusive Tockee Club.

At its height the blaze could be seen from more than 100 miles in either direction along the shore of Long Island sound. Nearly 200 yachts collected in the harbor to watch.

Among those at the festivities were a number of New York business leaders.

The party, the last of the season at the club, started with a "shipwreck," or the explosion of a makeshift vessel at the beach.

Several hours later, as the "survivors," in clothing designed to give the impression of having been shipwrecked, sat down to a banquet in the dining hall, the flames shooting up from a row of unused frame barhousings in the rear.

Firemen prevented the blaze from spreading. Damage was estimated at about $100,000.

STORM IN GERMANY

DELAYS GRAF FLIGHT

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—(P)—Sudden westerly gale today delayed the take-off of the Graf Zeppelin from South Germany, and caused a fatality at Tempelhof airfield here.

A private plane crashed in the storm. Its pilot was seriously injured and his plane badly damaged.

In Lindenfels, Hesse, a sailplane crashed, carrying to death the well-known aviator, Captain Janz. Seven balloons ready for flight were blown to bits by the storm.

The North sea coast was lashed by high winds and rain. A number of ships seeking shelter.

DICK RUSSELL

FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR

HIS HOME FOLKS RESENT

HARRIS' FOOLISH STATEMENT

W. J. Harris, author of a published letter saying 40 per cent of Barrow County folks are for Crisp, never was for Russell and one of the 16 Barrow citizens who signed a letter to Governor Russell, a copy of which was furnished to the governor's friends in Windsor.

In less than a hour time more than 2,000 citizens of Barrow County signed a declaration that Barrow County is backing Governor Russell for the senate.

HERE IS A. W. HARRIS' LETTER TO THE GOVERNOR:

"Governor Richard B. Russell Jr.,

"Atlanta, Ga.

"Dear Dick:

"I have known you all my life, and having been reared on the farm near the one where you were reared, I just wanted to let you know that the letter my brother, W. J. Harris, wrote to Mr. Crisp and had published in this morning's Atlanta Constitution is all wrong. I am a brother's opponent to you has run away with my better judgment. Don't you worry about your home folks sticking to you. They love you and your brother said they would stick to you for as long as you live and I am sure they will. They know you are going to carry this county solidly and that if Congressman Crisp and all his workers were to stick here from now until election, it would not change the result, but it would make your home folks more determined in your behalf.

"They know, too, that you will sweep the state next Wednesday, and we will have an even bigger reception for you here at Windsor on next Thursday night than when the people of old Georgia went to you in the Governor's chair.

"You would certainly have felt good to hear not only your brother's opinion but also the opinion of the people of Barrow County, and never did support you in Barrow County, and never did support you in Barrow County.

"Looking forward to a big victory for you Wednesday.

"Yours truly,

"A. W. HARRIS."

IN LESS THAN 8 HOURS MORE THAN 2,000 CITIZENS

OF BARROW COUNTY SIGNED THE FOLLOWING:

"GEORGIA, BARROW COUNTY—

"We, the undersigned citizens of Barrow County, Georgia, have learned that Mr. W. J. Harris has published in the Atlanta Constitution a letter to Mr. Charles B. Crisp, candidate for the United States Senate, in which he states that 40 per cent of this county is already for him, and that if he will come here and make a speech the county will go for him. We, the undersigned citizens, as being not only absolutely unfounded but utterly ridiculous. We say to the people of Georgia with all the earnestness we have that Dick Russell's home folks are solidly behind him and are more proud of him than ever. Neither the speech of Mr. Crisp nor of all his supporters can change them. We know Dick Russell, and know his heart beats true to the interests of the people of Barrow County and to the interests of the state of Georgia. We know that he has had in many years, and destined to be the greatest national champion of the rights of the masses.

RECOMMENDED SEWER PROJECT CONFERENCE TODAY

Key and Lawyers Will Seek To Remove Legal Barriers.

Mayor James L. Key today will take steps to remove legal barriers which now stand in the way of the $10,000,000 fund the city is seeking for renovation of the sewer system of metropolitan Atlanta.

During a conference at 11 o'clock this morning at the mayor's office, leading Atlanta attorneys will consider legal phases of the proposal to borrow the money from the federal relief funds, and will make recommendations which will be offered to affected governments.

Included among those invited to attend the conference are Marion Smith, Robert S. Parker, Robert C. Alston and City Attorney James L. Mayson. Directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation recommended inclusion of water improvements in the petition in order that water work receipts would be available to retire the obligation, thus making the composite project self-liquidating.

The plan has struck responsive chord among administration leaders, who contend that sewer improvements is the most needed project before the citizens of Atlanta.

As soon as the attorneys prepare the necessary legal papers, Key will order the plan to council and to governing bodies of other political subdivisions in the affected areas.

Mrs. D. E. Herren, member of a widely known Fulton county family, was killed Sunday morning in a collision with a car on Willis Mill road of injuries received July 20 when a cow knocked her down and broke her hip. She was 65 years of age.

Mrs. Herren's late husband was the owner of the Herren Dairy, which was begun 25 years ago. She was the daughter of the late J. S. Herren, for whom Willis Mill road is named, and was born and reared on the same plot of land on which she died. She was a leader in the community and prominent in civic affairs.

While assisting in the operation of the dairy, Mrs. Herren was attacked by a cow, and was knocked down and broken hip. Her injuries caused her to be confined to her bed, and complications from the fractured hip caused her death.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of the late Mrs. J. S. Herren, 1000 Greenwood cemetery, with nephews acting as pallbearers. Harry G. Poole is in charge.

Surviving are three sons, J. E. D. I. and Willis Herren; a brother, Albert M. Willis, and a granddaughter, Bettie Mae Herren.

FRANK JAMES HERTY

DIES AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—(P)—Frank James Herty, 60, died here Sunday morning. His body will be taken to his former home at Millidgeville, La., for funeral services.

The rites will probably be solemnized Tuesday.

Mr. Herty was a member of a prominent Georgia family. He was a son of the late Dr. James W. Herty and Mrs. Herty, of Millidgeville, and was a cousin of Dr. Charles Herty. He was with the Marine hospital in France during the war and had been a material officer at New Orleans for 10 years.

He is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Mable Cooper of Savannah; two daughters, Mrs. Vivian Cooper, of New Orleans, and Mrs. K. G. Althaus, wife of Captain Althaus of the United States Army, formerly stationed at Fort Benning, and two sisters, Mrs. Olive Herty Lucas and Mrs. M. M. Roberts, both of Atlanta.

DANIELS SCORES

BAN ON MARRIAGE

FOR U. S. ENSIGNS

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 11.—(P)—While Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration, would advise young naval officers leaving the Naval Academy in 1912 to marry, he declared here today he considered it "pretty high-handed for the government to say they cannot marry."

Commenting on the order issued at Washington yesterday that naval officers must remain single two years after leaving the academy, Daniels said he was "not sure that you have written your answers on the coupons in the space provided for that purpose and that your name and address appears on the coupon."

"I am sure that you haven't written more than one song title answer on any one coupon."

"Be sure that your answers are reasonable. If you are in doubt about them, take full advantage of the rule which permits a contestant to send in as many complete sets as you desire. On the extra sets extra answers can be written, which would be more than one opportunity of winning the first prize of $1,000, or of the other prizes, and the award of $500 to the winner of the consolation prize."

"Remember, the free list of song titles does not have all of the correct answers, as explained in the note on the coupon. The matter was originally brought to his attention in 1912 and in addition to raising the ban and permitting academy graduates to marry, he went before congress to have one graduate reinstated after his marriage."

"I could not put anything in the way of marriage. Daniels said, in the case of naval officers just out of Annapolis, there are some cases where marriage would not be desirable, but it is pretty high-handed for the government to say they cannot marry for two years. Ordinarily I am in favor of it, but a government has no right to say that."

Daniels arrived here this morning to attend the national convention of the American Legion.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

Masters of Bridge

Mr. Lewis R. Ayres, of Philadelphia, is recognized as one of the most brilliant bridge players in that great center of the world, with Mr. J. S. Jones, also of Philadelphia, he heads the Mixed Team Championship at Duplicate Contract at Asbury Park in 1931.

Mr. Ayres is a student of the cards of the highest order, and his play is held, and shining particularly in the play of difficult hands. In the hands below are selected a few of a Grand Slam before a card was played from the Dummy or closed hand.

South—Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East

INT(1) 2♠(2) 3♠(3) Pass

3NT(4) Pass 6NT(5) Pass

Pass Pass

(1) A minimum Opening bid. Mr. Ayres feels that inasmuch as his hand is a minimum, he cannot afford to bid a diamond, in which, of course, the Slam contract is quite easy.

(2) A bid of 2♠ is vulnerable and risks a considerable set.

(3) A Forcing bid. Partner may not drop the bidding until games is reached.

(4) Showing that the Opening bid was a minimum.

(5) North knows that the combined hands are worth less than 6-12 honor-tricks. In view of the fact that his partner has already shown an inclination to drop the bidding, he does not dare to show either of his biddable suits.

West opened the spade 6, and the Dummy was exposed. The vulnerable Jump Overall had been made by an experienced and usually sound player, and was known to be correct. The hand, however, was a one spade higher than the 6 in the East hand. Quite probably that card was the spade Knave. From his own cards and those in Dummy, Mr.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Ayres could see that the only high cards in the West hand in any other suit than spades must be the Ace-Queen of clubs. So reasoned, he saw that the first trick must be taken with the Ace in order to arrive at the following situation after five diamonds and four hearts had been taken:

RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE

The Net of Stealth.

By Zane Grey

Jane slammed the door behind her which she had found one of her maids eavesdropping, and turned to Lassiter. "Spies! My own women! Oh, miserable!" she cried. So bitter certainty claimed her at last, and trust fled with eastern house forever.

The women who owed much to Jane changed not in devotion to their household work, but their loyalty to Jane was poisoned by a thousand acts of stealth. Secretly they went about their underhand work. They stole Jane's records, and finally the papers that were her deeds of possession.

Ignorant of this domestic treachery, Jane went about the home and lands she loved so much. The rich, green stretches of alfalfa, the farms, the grove, and the old stone house. Most of all Jane cherished her horses, and Black Star and Night were her favorites.

Jane charged her last loyal ranch hand with the care of her racers. "Jerd," she said, "turn into the sage what stock you can't take care of. Let your first thought be for Black Star and Night. Keep them in perfect condition!" It was a half-conscious admission that prosaged a time when she would need her fleet horses.

Midsummer Madness

By Sterling North

INSTALLMENT XIX.

Bobby and Jack themselves, who rose by the middle of the forenoon, seemed forgetful of the sword of Damocles hanging over them. There might be gunmen, death in a number of forms and mystery of all kinds lurking about the place, but neither of the young people gave danger a second thought as they hurried down to the lake to take their morning dip. Now that Bobby could perfectly easily leave the lodge and hurry back to Chicago, she felt disinclined to do so. She was human enough and sufficiently feminine to want to get to the bottom of things. She had decided to stay out the coming week. Jack, on the other hand, admitted a desire to leave the lodge that very day for a trip to the village of Oconto. "But why do you want to leave me?" Bobby complained. "I've got a theory about the gang who are using this lodge, Bobby. I'd take you along, but I feel it would be too dangerous." "Don't go today, Jack. Let's have Sunday together." "Tomorrow might be too late," Jack said. "You go I'm going." "No, you're not," Bobby Burns. "You'll stay right here where Pete can watch after you." "A lot of good Pete would be," Bobby said. "If anything happened I'd probably have to protect him." "Do you think Pete has anything to do with the mystery in the cellar?" Jack asked seriously. "Not a thing," Bobby said. "He hasn't the intelligence of one of the silly porcupines we saw in the woods." "That's what I would guess, too," Jack said. "But how can he help knowing about that cache in the hide-out room?" "That's easy," Bobby explained. "He's probably never found that out—evidence, hidden as it is with vines, and you'll admit it's no easy matter to learn the combination which opens the panel." "It's either been paid or threatened," Jack mused, "or perhaps he still attributes these queer occurrences to haunts." "I think he'd clear out tomorrow except that Martha won't let him," Bobby said. "She is the man of the family and yet you wouldn't suspect her of anything." "No, I wouldn't," Bobby agreed.

It's the people who live in glass houses who shouldn't.

JUST NUTS

PERHAPS YOU WOULD LIKE SOME CHIPPENDALE FURNITURE?

NO! I DON'T WANT ANYTHING THAT'S CHIPPED!

She's awfully good at heart. Unless what?

"Unl' some one very dear to her is using the lodge that way. She's a very maternal sort of person."

"You mean that perhaps a son?"

"Yes, a son or a brother, perhaps. One she has grown to love."

"That's an idea," Jack agreed. "A motherly person will forgive almost anything. You kneeling beside Eddie last night, for instance."

"Please, Jack!"

"I know that wasn't fair, Bobby. I won't say anything like that again. But if I can prove conclusively that Eddie is unworthy of you..."

"Jack, tell me now what you know about Eddie."

"I know he's unworthy," Jack said, "and on the day I can prove it to your satisfaction and mine I will tell you everything I know about him. Is that a bargain?"

"I suppose it will have to be," Bobby said.

"And do you remember the question I asked you last night?"

"A girl doesn't forget so easily."

"Well, I won't ask you to answer that question until I have proved that Eddie isn't the kind of man you would want to marry."

"Until then we must both be patient," Bobby said, holding out her hand to him.

They strolled in the clear lake, diving, floating quietly and looking up at the sky of lapis lazuli. The sun was hot on their brown shoulders and the lake cool to their bodies.

Once they waded under the pier, chasing the schools of minnows darting over the sandy bottom. And once when Jack was helping her to the pier they kissed.

After lunch Jack took the launch across to the colony, hired a car and started for Oconto. He had promised Bobby that he would be back before dark.

And Bobby was glad, in a way, to have the afternoon to herself. She realized that she had not written a single letter to her Aunt Pearl, despite her promise to write every day. Literally she had not had a moment in which to write, but this did not ease her conscience when she realized how worried the poor dear would be.

Bobby found writing paper and envelopes with Vincent Hallway's distinctive seal in the big writing desk in the living room of the lodge. She longed for a typewriter. It made the business of expressing her thoughts almost effortless. But finding none, she began to write swiftly in a smooth, round, schoolgirl hand. She wrote:

"Dear Aunt Pearl:

"I scarcely know where to begin, so many exciting things have happened since you waved goodbye to me at the dock in Chicago and reminded me not to fall in love.

"I am afraid that I have already fallen in love, and with the nicest boy you can imagine, a young blonde and blue-eyed architect just out of school. At times he seems very gay and irresponsible, but underneath he has more determination and actual strength of character than any one I have ever met.

"I know what you think about vacation romances, but when you see Jack Horner I know you will agree with me that this one is an exception.

"Probably you have been worrying because I haven't written, but really Auntie, my days have been so full that I haven't found a minute to write.

"For one thing, I went canoeing and had a slight accident. But I haven't to add that I got back to the lodge safely in the end, and that I won't take any more chances in a canoe.

"Then there has been a trifling mystery here at the lodge. Some men in a big motor boat stole our gasoline and we were unable to use the launch for several days because of it. But last Saturday night after the supply boat came with gasoline and provisions, Jack and I took the launch across to the summer colony on the other side of the lake and attended a dance. Jack and three other fellows had a slight misunderstanding, but nothing serious as it turned out.

"These events, plus seeing a wolf, discovering a secret panel and staircase in the old lodge, and a few other fairly exciting incidents are all of importance that have happened to your loving niece.

"Jack lives in a little cabin down the beach from the lodge and is always within calling distance should anything happen to me. Then there are Pete and Martha, the old guide and his wife, so you see I am perfectly safe, and I don't want you to worry one bit.

"I do wonder how everything has been going at home. Did you buy the new green and white dotted swiss curtains for the kitchen, and the organdie ones for the bedroom? I suppose you have been busy canning cherries, they're so cheap this year, and you are so sensible with our money. Did you get over your little cold?"

ENVELOPE CAMPAIGN PROVES A SUCCESS

"The educational campaign we started a little over two years ago," says S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, "calling attention to the advantage of using fresh envelopes is now bearing good fruit. We are receiving many orders from customers who tell us that they have changed to us because of the shop-worn envelopes they had been getting from distant cities giving them trouble.

"Our featuring fresh envelopes," continued Mr. Guthman, "is in line with the tempo of the day. People of discriminating tastes do not want anything stale or out of date, especially when in many cases the newer material does not carry a higher and longer time overhead expense like those that might have been "Color in envelopes and the paper inside play a far greater part than the average layman would think in getting answering results. As we have made a study of this matter we are prepared to give our new and old customers the full benefit of our surveys in the matter. This also means our customers can in many cases have their own individual color envelopes and writing paper either in their respective lines or communities.

"The return envelope in these days of higher postage is a very strong reason why the individual firm's name should be printed plainly thereon. It is now

It is now more important to all those who have much mailing to do to know that the nearly 100 per cent of deliveries are being made. A little more care in the buying of envelopes might mean the difference between

"Our original four-in-one type of envelope is a patented pay envelope that is very popular with firms or organizations that have 25 or more people on their pay rolls, and they are made fresh and in any color wanted."

COTTON CLOTH SALES SHOW BIG INCREASE

New York, Sept. 11.—(P)—Sales of carded cotton cloths in August broke all previous monthly records and stocks fell to the lowest level recorded since comparable statistics became available in January, 1928, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants announced today.

Sales for the month totaled 510,531,000 yards, or 282.4 per cent of the production of 180,781,000 yards. Unfilled orders increased 112.1 per cent to 485,860,000 yards, or the largest for any month since March, 1929. Billings were 252,623,000 yards or 139.7 per cent of the production during the period.

Stocks on August 31 were 209,407,000 yards, a reduction of 25.5 per cent, and comparing with a previous low record of 239,654,000 yards at the end of February, 1932.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED No. 73

Picking up his spear, the ape-man looked about for signs of Olga's trail. This he soon found leading toward the east. As he set out upon it, something prompted him to feel for the locket he had hung about his neck. It was gone!

No anger showed on his face, but his jaws tightened grimly as he felt the bump on his head where the girl spy had struck him. Then a half-smile crossed his lips as he had to admit that Olga had neatly tricked him.

He knew it must have taken nerve to do the thing she did and then set out, armed only with a pistol, through the trackless waste lying between them and Wilhelmstadt. Tarzan admired courage—even in a Red spy, but he saw that in this case——it only added to the girl's resourcefulness and made her all the more dangerous, increasing the necessity for putting her out of the way. Hoping to overtake her before she could reach Red headquarters, he set out at a swinging trot.
